ALABASTINE

THE ONLY DURABLE WALL FINISH.

Please Read the Following Testimonial as to its Merits:

SALT LAKE CITY, February 9th, 1886

Messrs. Sears & Liddle:

GENTLEMEN—It gives me pleasure to comment on the superior work we are now doing with the cement from Alabaster rock, called Alabastine. The effects produced by it are very brilliant in tinting, such as Calceining, Freezing, etc. And I do conscientiously recommend the article as being one of the best improvements ever offered to the trade or public.

I can always afford to guarantee my work done with this material, so that I am fully satisfied with it, and would recommend it to all fellow workmen.

Respectfully,
W. C. MORRIS,
The Painter.

Congressmen Fight in the Lobby.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Quite a sensation was created in the House this afternoon by a personal encounter between Representatives Cobb, of Indiana, and Laird, of Nebraska, growing out of charges made by the former on the floor of the House to the effect that the Nebraska member had been concerned in a land ring. Representative Payson, of Illinois, member of the public lands committee, was explaining to Representative Gullilan the effect of certain Senate amendments to the bill intended to protect the rights of the homestead settlers, when Representative Laird leaped forward from his seat toward the party and asked: "Why do not you fellows (referring to the public lands committee) do something to break up the land rings in the south instead of raiding upon the north?"

Payson replied that was what the committee was endeavoring to do. Cobb undertook to defend the committee of which he was chairman, and an angry passage occurred between him and Laird, which ended by the latter gentleman calling the former a liar. Witnesses say that Cobb declared that Laird did not dare to come outside and repeat his language. Laird is said to have replied that the gentleman could not go out soon enough for him. With this the pair started into the lobby and to the basement. Some one called Mr. Payson's attention to their exit with the statement that they were going outside to fight it out. Thereupon Mr. Payson hurried through the doorway and coming up with the would-be combatants on the stairway, caught Cobb by the collar and remonstrated with him for pursuing so boyish and foolish a course. He succeeded in getting Cobb to retrace his steps so far as the west door of the lobby. Laird following when the controversy broke out afresh.

Referring to the charges Cobb had made against him in a speech several weeks ago, Laird angrily declared that he (Cobb) was a liar.

Cobb said Laird was a perjurer, but the words had hardly passed his lips before Laird struck him a heavy blow on the mouth and nose. A stream of blood trickled down Cobb's face, and he was thrown backward against the doorway. The crowd which had congregated interposed at this juncture, and the combatants separated. Laird taking his seat in the House and Cobb reclining in an easy chair in the lobby, where he was surrounded by his friends.

The bad feeling between the two members dates back some months, and it was apparent on the occasion when Cobb made his charges against Laird, some three weeks ago that the last-named member was extremely difficultly refrained from emphasizing with his fist the indignant denial and defiance he hurled at his antagonist. There was every occasion to believe that if interference had come in the shape of Payson, who sought to pour oil on the troubled waters, that a sanguinary personal encounter would have resulted. Both of the members concerned are of powerful physique and bear the reputation of men ready at all times to defend themselves in a fitting manner. Cobb stands six feet and over in his shoes and is of proportional breadth, but is somewhat at a disadvantage on the score of age, being in the neighborhood of 55 or 60. Laird is but 37 (37 1/2) years, with a girl of chest that would ornament an athlete, and fiery, impetuous temper. On the other hand, he is also slightly lame, the result of a fracture of a leg a year ago. Neither of the members are willing to make a statement at this time, and the probable upshot of the encounter. The opinion is expressed in some quarters that the House of Representatives has been outraged by the affair, and that it is a fitting subject for investigation by that body; that a majority of the members who are disposed to talk about the matter hold that as the encounter did not occur on the floor the House is in no wise concerned.

Crawford vs. Crawford and Dilke.

LONDON, July 15.—The re-hearing in the divorce case of Crawford against Crawford and Dilke opened by the Queen's proctor was begun to-day. Sir Charles Dilke, correspondent, was present, as also was Mrs. Crawford and her sister. The court room was crowded. The counsel for the Queen's proctor, in opening the case, asserted that the servants mentioned by Mrs. Crawford in her confession as being present and witnessing her meetings with Sir Charles Dilke, at his house or elsewhere, did not confirm Mrs. Crawford's statement in any particular. Sarah, the maid who Mrs. Crawford said dressed her in Sir Charles' apartment after his departure from the apartment there, denied, counsel said, that she ever did so. Mrs. Crawford alleged. The French woman, Fanny, who Mrs. Crawford confessed brought her into relation with Sir Charles Dilke, with her husband had, counsel admitted, disappeared; but Dilke himself would testify and show that he was not with Mrs. Crawford on the dates she alleges he was in company with her, and Fanny, the woman who kept the house in Warren Street, wherein Mrs. Crawford said she met Sir Charles, would show that he never staid long at Mrs. Crawford's house, waiting for his master to terminate his visits to Mrs. Crawford. The coachman would further testify that he could have seen it anything wrong had been done in the room where Mrs. Crawford received Sir Charles in her own house; as the coachman from his box could easily see over the whole area of the room. The consensus of opinion makes of the re-hearing a strong attempt to whitewash Dilke. Mrs. Crawford adheres to every statement in her confession.

The San Francisco Car Strike.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—The strike of two hundred car drivers and conductors on the North Beach & Mission Mission Road, fearing trouble this and City Railroad Companies which was inaugurated yesterday assumed a serious aspect to-night. The North Beach & evening, stabled all cars before dark, the City Railroad Company running their cars, but soon after dark about four thousand people gathered on Mission Street, between Fourth and Sixth Streets, and as the companies' cars passed they were saluted with showers of stones and other missiles. An attempt was also made to derail the cars by placing scantling across the tracks. The obstructions were, however, removed by the police. Finally three cars were stopped, the horses unhitched, the windows broken, the drivers and conductors forced to leave, and one car was upset across the track. The police, unable to cope with the crowd, sent for reinforcements, and succeeded in dispersing the crowd. Police were then stationed at each corner to prevent the people re-assembling. Four of the rioters were arrested. No serious injury to persons has been reported. Matters at a late hour are quiet. No prospect of a recurrence of the trouble to-night. The men went on strike, as alleged by them, because the car companies had discharged a number of men on the ground of their being Knights of Labor.

He Died Easily.

WOODSTOCK, Ill., July 15.—James Dacey, who killed Alderman Michael Gaynor, of Chicago, two years ago, as a result of a political row, was hanged here shortly after noon to-day. The prisoner was very violent until just prior to the execution, when he asked quietly to the scaffold. He declined to make any response to the sheriff, and died easily.

Restful Nights, Days Free From Torture.

Await the rheumatic sufferer who resorts to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. That this benignant cordial and purgative is a far more reliable remedy than colicium and other poisons used to expel the rheumatic virus from the blood, is a fact that experience has satisfactorily demonstrated. It also enjoys the advantage of being—unlike them—perfectly safe. With many persons a certain predisposition to rheumatism exists, which renders them liable to its attacks after exposure in wet weather, to currents of air, changes of temperature, or to cold when the body is hot. Such persons should take a wine glass or two of the Bitters as soon as possible after incurring risk from the above causes, as this superb protective effectually nullifies the hurtful influence. For the functional derangements which accompany rheumatism, such as colic, spasms, in the stomach, pupitation of the bowels, imperfect digestion, etc., the Bitters is also a most useful remedy. It is only necessary in obstinate cases to use it with persistence.
